Safe spaces to ask what your students think.....

A learning environment with these four main characteristics:

1. Multiple perspectives acknowledged

2. No competition for the truth – no-one has all the answers, no need to agree with everything or ‘win’ the argument

3. Open ended – on-going reflection

4. Support for questioning and reflection on these ideas- thinking about why we think the way we do- without students feeling silenced.
Five Global Learning Themes

- Diversity
- Human rights
- Interdependence
- Peace and Conflict
- Sustainability

What’s the same?

What’s different?
His house is different, he has no electricity, he’s in a hot place.

He’s not wearing shoes and his face is different, he’s got different clothes to us.

He’s homeless and he has to sleep on the floor. He’s too poor to go to school.

He lives in Africa, he has no mum or dad.
he is busy, he has the same sort of clothes, likes flying kite, he has the right to play

he’s happy, has a religion, we’re both human, we’re children

he’s absorbed, he likes playing, he likes and cares for his toys

he’s got a home, he’s a member of a community
Who will have which job?

Doctor?

Scientist?

Farmer?

Builder?

Teacher?

Cleaner?

Cook?

Nurse?
He’s poor because he has no shoes, they don’t normally wear shoes in Africa, he’s from a poor country where children have to work, he’s from Africa. He’s a farmer because he won’t have had an education so he’ll follow in his family footsteps.
'she’s a nurse, not a doctor'

‘she’s going to marry someone’
‘teacher? That’s easy...that’s the white girl’

‘she looks clever so she’d be a teacher’
‘he’ll be a doctor cos he wants to help people like him’

‘he’d be a scientist’

‘you’d have to have a job sitting down wouldn’t you?’
• people could be lots of things, scientists don’t have to be men
• they can be anything they want to be, there is no right or wrong answer, any of them could be anything and it doesn’t matter
• it’s hard cos it shows nothing about them as people
• we decided what to pick by using our feelings – ourselves in their body and trying to think of what they’d do
I would be very poor and I would feel quite ashamed because I would sometimes be drinking flies because they fly and they fall into the well so we have to drink them but Blue Peter gave Ghana clean water and now they have clean water.
What do pupils know about Ghana?

• ‘this school is linked to a school in Ghana...we sent stuff we made for them to learn’
• ‘they don’t have running water, fridges, cookers, dishwashers...’
• ‘in Ghana there are charities which help loads of poor people to help educate them...’
• ‘designs...masks...drums...they are brilliant at art stuff’
Another view of Ghana?
Developing a wider perspective:

Ghana is a country
It used to be called Gold Coast
Not a landlocked country
Borders Ivory Coast and Togo
They learn English in school
There are some Christians and some Muslims
They speak English as well

They eat porridge, guava, mango, pineapple
Breakfast is smoked fish and millet porridge
They eat yams and fufu

They have a good football team
They are in the world cup
Children in Ghana have their lunch outside

HEC Global Learning Centre
It's very busy in the city
There is a rural and an urban
Lush

They make Kente cloth
We get cocoa beans from there
They grow big Fairtrade bananas
They grow fair trade products
They harvest and grow cocoa beans
Most cocoa bean farmers don’t get a fair deal for their work. That’s why people introduced fair trade.

They have to pay a lot of debts to the richer countries
They were the first country to have independence
A history of slavery
Only in China? Only in UK?
Or Both?

An easy baseline activity for all pupils to see if they have unbalanced or narrow views of places or people that can be addressed.
